AMERICANS KILL CZAR'S POLICEMAN AND ESCAPE

Quartet of Yankers Whose Passports Were Sought by Officials, Undertake Wholesale Slaughter, Killing Four and Wounding Like Number

United Press Service

USOFKA, Russia, Jan. 6.—Four Americans, one of whom killed four policemen and wounded four others, three of whom are not expected to recover, are today being sought by the police of this district. One of the fugitives is a woman.

A policeman knocked at the Americans' door. It was opened and he fell dead with five bullets through the head. He called to investigate a report that they had no passports.

Reinforcements were called. One American stepped out, holding up his hands and saying, "I surrender."

An officer approached and fell with a bullet through the heart.

The American took the revolver and cartridges from his belt, said "Thanks; that's all I wanted," and returned to the house. In a few moments he reappeared, a gun in each hand, calmly walked through the crowd and sought refuge in a garden.

In a subsequent fight he killed two more policemen.
